“ Condolences to George, Carina and family . We knew Nana and Granddad for many years when they came to family occasions in North York, and later in Peterborough. Nana's accent never changed from when she left England. At Christmas we looked forward to her famous mince pies. On a memorable visit to their home, we had a wonderful roast lamb dinner with all the traditional English trimmings. We are sure you will all miss her for being a fun part of your lives for 107+ years. Mary Rose and Nicholas

“ As a child, Nana was the one to defy the "Home Rules" by taking us to McDonalds (despite the styrofoam packaging) and give us milk & cookies before bed (often IN bed!). She nurtured traditional "gendered" skills but never expressed a belief that there should be limits on what I learn as a girl, probably because no one would dare placing such limitations on her! Once I became an adult (in her mind, at least), suddenly she was sharing her full humour with me... humour that was often x-rated and almost always mischievous!

“ My condolences to the Tuck family. I had the pleasure of meeting Roses nana a few times over the years and it was always an experience! If I wanted to have conversations about the latest and greatest sex positions, she was the one to ask. Ive never had a grandma make me blush before and have not had since. I also have not ever heard the phrase "motor boating" since the last time I visited her. An amazing woman, an amazing grandmother.
