“ My two young daughters, aged 2 and 3, attend a daycare close to where Liam lived. Liam would visit them when they played outside almost daily, and I always knew which days he visited because even hours later, my three year old would come home absolutely beaming about her conversations with her \u201cbest friend Liam.\u201d One of her favourite memories that she has shared multiple times, both prior to and after his passing was her saying \u201cLove ya, Liam!\u201d and him responding \u201cNo yaaa don\u2019t!\u201d in a silly fashion. His kindness, penchants for slowing down in life, and patience has made an ever-lasting impression on her and I am very grateful for the impact Liam has had on her life. Being three, this is my daughter\u2019s first \u201creal\u201d loss, and she is struggling to understand why Liam can\u2019t visit anymore, but she knows that he is in heaven and is always watching over her now. Each morning, she comments on the colours of the sunrise and the shapes of the various clouds, and she has shared with me that she\u2019s pretty sure Liam is in the sky, painting us pictures to enjoy and revel in. Thank you to Liam\u2019s family for sharing him with the world, and to Liam\u2014 thank you for using your vibrant and colourful brush to paint such everlasting and positive memories for my daughter. His kindness will truly shine on forever. Condolences, Sam, Lennon, and Halle
