“Margaret, we first met many years ago after I met and fell in love with your daughter Carrie. I asked you what I should do to keep her happy, and you replied, love her like no other had ever entered my life. I kept that promise I made to you, and I am still loving her today. Even though we became distant in your life and mine. I still have good memories of you and I when times were better for both of us. I pray that your soul has entered into the Kingdom of Heaven and you are at rest, I will still love your daughter till the end of mine time and will always cherish what you had given me. I hope that there are good books to read in heaven, as this was one of your passions. I haven chosen not to say good bye to you just yet. I will just say later. In prayer for you. Miles
