MASTER CORPORAL (RETIRED)

PETER OSWALD BAMBROUGH

JANUARY 26, 1955 – MARCH 20, 2025

It is with heavy hearts, the family of Master Corporal (Retired) Peter Oswald Bambrough announces his peaceful passing from congestive heart failure on Thursday, March 20, 2025, in the comfort of his home.

Peter is lovingly remembered by his wife Kelly, and his sons Joshua and Nicholas (wife Chrystal). His grandchildren—Elijah, Liam, and Niclaus—meant the world to him and brought him immense joy.

Born in Edinburgh, Scotland, on January 26, 1955, Peter was the beloved son of Roy Oswald Bambrough and Sheila Margaret Bambrough, and brother to Rose-Marie (Tom Kerr) and Helen (Glenn Bryant).

Always the father who showed up. He volunteered with the Scouts as headmaster, helped organize school ski trips, coached baseball, and was involved with the cadets, where his eldest son Josh went on to earn the rank of Chief Warrant Officer. He didn't just support from the sidelines—he participated, encouraged, and helped shape the experiences around him.

Peter proudly served with the Canadian Armed Forces as part of the Parachute Corps, achieving the rank of Master Corporal and earning his Jump Wings. He was a veteran of Cyprus and Beirut, completing numerous foreign training courses and distinguishing himself in marksmanship competitions and unit commendations.

As a master carpenter, Peter was known across Canada for his exceptional skill in restoring historic churches. Specializing in traditional English carpentry, he was one of the few tradesmen to hold a prestigious Gold Seal Certificate in the field. His craftsmanship brought history back to life in sacred spaces across the country and earned him deep respect in the industry.

Peter was a man of strength, pride, laughter, and quiet wisdom. He will be missed deeply and remembered always.

“Not all wounds are visible—but neither are all the ways we love.”
